

Emma Windsor is an artist, animator and filmmaker.

Her independent films have been shown at international film festivals including: Bristol Encounters Short Film & Animation Festival, Stuttgart Animation Festival and the Glastonbury Music Festival. She has also worked with NFP/charitable organisations such as Girlguiding UK to produce animated presentations, and has worked on animated adverts for well-known brands, including Nestlé and BT. Her full portfolio can be seen here.

In addition to her concept and creative design roles, she has a diverse range of production skills including: modelmaking, illustration, animation camerawork, lighting and editing. Emma works as 'White Rabbit Animation' and can often be seen (but not heard) ferreting through the countryside, armed with only a camera and audio recorder.

Artist Statement

As a child, I was afraid of the dark...

I'd dread waking to it in the small hours - swinging my legs out of bed within the grasp of the hands beneath and dashing to turn on the light. Often, however, I'd just lie there. Too scared to move for fear of disturbing the hands that now crawled along the bed frame to scratch at my mind. As I grew, so too did my fascination with monsters. I soon learnt that every kindly Dr Jekyll harbours his own sordid Hyde and that the manufacture of beasts is the staple of those who wish to consume us. I am inspired by odd places. I want to explore dusty attics, forest thickets, forgotten pathways and abandoned stations. I am drawn to textures. I want to run eyeballs over rusty surfaces and serve up viscid meats. I am intrigued by dark themes, by urban myths and cautionary tales. Most of all I am eager to lift the mask, to peer beneath and ponder who really has the sharpest teeth. I am a monster hunter.

Body of Works

MiLK HaRE (animated film short, released 2011)

Based on old Scandinavian folklore, MiLK HaRE uses a number of animation techniques including pixilation and timelapse to tell its macabre tale. As writer, director and animator, I was involved in all areas of production under camera. [\[Find out more and watch the film\]](#)
